Danaher Says New Deal
Abandons All Pretext by Action

Washington, July 20 (AP).—The administration dropped the term "self-liquidating" today from the title of its $2,800,000,000 lending program bill.

Majority Leader Barkley of the Senate, who announced the alteration, said the purpose was to get away from possible "pityish, petty-fogish objections" to the label, "self-liquidating."

There has been no change, said Barkley, in the administration's fundamental proposal for putting money loaned under the program into recoverable assets.

But Senator Danaher of Connecticut, voicing a view expressed in some Republican quarters, contended that the administration had "abandoned all pretext that this is a self-liquidating proposition."

Contention "Silly"

This contention, Barkley rejoined, was "silly."

The majority leader said the new name of the legislation was "works financing act," whereas the old name was "self-liquidating projects act."

He appeared at a closed session of the Senate banking committee to explain provisions of the measure, which has recently undergone revision in an effort of leaders to meet some objections. One section cut out in the remodeling measure was that calling for a permanent revolving fund. Under the new plan money repaid on loans would be turned over to the treasury instead of being put aside for further lending.

Meanwhile Republican leaders joined Democratic chieftains in seeking prompt action on the legislation so Congress may go home soon—perhaps by July 29.

McNary's Advice

Senator McNary (R-Or.) advised Democratic Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) that Republican Senators would cooperate in any move for a quick showdown vote, even though most of them oppose the legislation. It was reported authoritatively that Representative Martin (R-Mass.) House minority leader, had made a similar agreement.

With the thorny neutrality issue definitely shelved for this session, the lending program remained as the chief barrier to speedy adjournment.

Mr. Roosevelt was disclosed to have agreed to expand the program to include additional authority for the RFC to insure business loans which hold a "reasonable prospect of repayment."

Senator McNary (D-Ky.), author of legislation to provide government insurance of small loans, disclosed he was conferring with Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board on a proposal authorizing the board to lend up to $270,000,000 to small business.

Talks With President

Mead talked yesterday with the president, Administrator Jesse Jones of the federal lending agency, and Chairman Emil Schram of the RFC. They said afterward that Mr. Roosevelt proposed an educational campaign to show banks and business men that the RFC can do in insuring loans.

Senator Barkley, author of the lending bill, made one concession to opponents by agreeing to eliminate a provision calling for a permanent revolving fund. Under his proposal, money repaid on loans would be turned over to the treasury instead of being put aside for future re-lending.

Although both Barkley and Senator Minton, Democratic whip, said they were "shooting at" adjournment by the end of next week, cloakroom conversations were dominated by talk of a special session to settle the neutrality question. Most well-informed senators held the belief that Mr. Roosevelt would call congress back at once if a new crisis developed in Europe.

The president and Secretary Hull had pleaded for immediate repeal of the arms embargo against warring nations, but agreed at a White House conference Tuesday night to postpone action until the next session.

Five Arabs Killed

Jerusalem, July 20 (AP).—Five Arabs were killed today and four were wounded in a new outbreak of anti-Arab violence in the southern district of Palestine. Two were killed in Tel Aviv, two were wounded in Be'er Sheva; one was killed and two were wounded in Petah Tikva.

The condition of Charles M. Cole of Kingston who was injured in a motor car crash on the Plank road and Joseph Keener of Bennington, injured on the New Palisades road, were still considered serious at the Kingston Hospital today.

Northampton, Mass., July 20 (AP).—James J. Kehoe, 24, former convict charged with kidnapping his divorced wife, pleaded innocent in district court today and was held in $11,200 bail for a hearing July 28.

Kehoe, who also entered pleas of innocent to charges of robbery while armed, larceny and carrying a dangerous weapon, was committed to Hampshire county jail for lack of bail.

Neither the woman he was charged with holding for 24 hours nor her present husband, from whose presence she allegedly was abducted, was in the courtroom. Kehoe was arrested in a tourist cabin last night, 20 miles from the scene of the alleged kidnapping.

Neutrality Bill Will Be Evolved
From Talks With U.S. Voters

Washington, July 20 (AP).—A neutrality measure will be evolved out of hundreds of talks with members of congress have with voters of their home states during the next few months.

Regardless of whether President Roosevelt goes campaigning for his brand of neutrality, or whether Senators Borah (R., Idaho) and Johnson (R., Calif.) go out arguing against it, most politicians say the determining factor will be the soundings of political sentiment taken during the recess of congress.

That of a barnstorming neutrality debate, reminiscent of that which the Idahoan and Californian helped take to the country in their 1919 battle against the League of Nations, are minimized in several quarters.

Borah and Johnson are 20 years older than they were when the "Battalion of Death" flourished. And President Roosevelt, though deeply interested in the neutrality measure, has given no sign that he expects his administration to be measured solely by whether

German Agency Reports That Danzig Customs Officer Kills Polish Border Soldier in Self Defense—Warsaw Denies Report

(By The Associated Press)

Tension between the free city of Danzig and Poland suddenly increased today when a Polish soldier was killed near a Danzig village on the frontier which is one of Europe's most troubled spots.

Poles said the soldier was killed by a Danzig customs officer who fired across the frontier without warning. Officials of Nazi-controlled Danzig said the Polish soldier was shot after he had aimed his rifle at the Danzig customs man.

Germany's army chief of staff, Colonel-General Walther von Brauchitsch, spoke at Tannenberg, 10 miles from the Polish frontier, warning Poland that Germany does not "seek a fight but we do not fear it."

A Warsaw official was sentenced in Danzig to 14 months imprisonment on an arms charge and another Pole, Colonel Sobocinski, was said to have been arrested by Free City police.

Fears Voiced

Some British circles voiced fears that Britain's differences with Poland over credits for Polish armaments and delay in reaching a British-French-Soviet mutual assistance pact had impelled the psychological effectiveness of the British-French front.

An independent member of parliament, Vernon Bartlett, declared in the House of Commons that the "grudging way" in which Britain discusses credits with Poland nurtures doubts in Polish minds about British determination to make a stand against aggression.

Prime Minister Chamberlain struck a more optimistic note, however, in a letter urging support of a government candidate in a parliamentary re-election. He said "there is every indication that Britain's newly-regained power is restoring confidence to Europe and in those countries which desire to live in peace and security."

Paris Disappointed

Disappointment was expressed in Paris over President Roosevelt's decision to abandon further efforts to obtain neutrality legislation at this session of congress. Informed circles viewed this as tending to increase European war risks, while anxiety was felt over the failure to reach an agreement with Soviet Russia.

Some 200,000 German-speaking Italians worried over their ultimate fate in the Italian Tyrol "autonomy" by ousting foreigners.

The South Tyrolese, who were Austrian before the World War made them Italian, are apprehensive they may be moved out of Bolzano province along with 10,000 German citizens and other foreigners already expelled.

Quarrel Continues

In the Far East the British-Japanese quarrel continued. Lingtong reports said about 100 Chinese patients and 75 employees of the China Inland Mission Hospital at Kai-feng had been ejected by police in last week's anti-British campaign which compelled British missionaries to leave Kai-feng.

British missionaries and Chinese co-workers said the drive had been carried on with the apparent sanction of the Japanese army. The Chinese were threatened with death if they continued to cooperate with British in the Japanese-controlled region.

Kuhn Is Fined $5
By Webster Judge

Profanity Charge Brings
End to Bundman's Case

Webster, Mass., July 20 (AP).—Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American Bund and sometimes called the "Little Fuhrer" by his followers, pleaded guilty in district court today to charges of drunkenness and profanity and was fined $5 on the latter count.

In a jammed court room, Kuhn shifted from one foot to the other, apparently nervous as his lawyer stepped up to make the guilty plea. Judge Louis O. Rieudor placed the drunkenness charge on file, thereby suspending further action on this count.

Kuhn's trouble started in the early hours of Sunday morning here when Motorcycle Patrolman Henry Plasse stopped his party because he contended the driver of the automobile was not fit to drive. After a switch of drivers the party started off, but Plasse arrested Kuhn when he contended, the bund leader swore at him.

There was a murmur of "Oh's" when the $5 fine was announced by the court clerk. Immediately court attaches cleared a path for Kuhn through the spectators who filled the room and packed the doorways. Newspaper men followed the bundman asked him if he would have anything to say.

"No comment," he replied. "Maybe I'll have a statement later."

There was a brief conference with the judge before Kuhn's case was called. He failed to come in to court when he first was ordered to appear last Monday. Kuhn and his wife of five appeared at the courthouse today, however, more than an hour before his scheduled hearing.

Roosevelt Offer Shows Desire for Help on Refugees

President, Observers Believe, Will Take Opportunity of Showing Burden to Foreign Groups

Washington, July 20 (AP).—President Roosevelt's invitation to leaders of the international refugee movement for a White House conference was seen today by some officials as reflecting a desire to include other governments to shoulder their share of the refugee burden.

They believe that the President, who with Secretary Hull originated the international organization to help German and Austrian political refugees, will take this occasion to bring home to other governments the necessity for greater cooperation. He can point out to the 31 other countries represented on the inter-governmental committee, with headquarters in London, the fact that the United States is cooperating to the full extent of its capacity.

The immigration quota for Germany for the fiscal year ending June 30 was entirely filled and about 6,000 more Germans came in outside the quota, making the total about 33,000. About 95 per cent of these, it is estimated, are Jewish refugees.

Officials here say that if other governments would accept German refugees in the same percentage, the refugee problem would be an easy one.

By September 8, the probable date of the White House meeting, two American committees will have made their reports on possible places for Jewish refugee settlement—the Philippines and the Dominican Republic. An Anglo-American committee already has investigated British Guiana and a British committee has checked up on Rhodesia.

Part in Strange Ritual

Sining, Kansu Province, China, July 20 (AP).—A grave-mannered five-year-old boy whom China officials favor for recognition as the reincarnation of the late Dalai Lama has started a 1,000-mile journey over the roof of the world to Lhasa, Tibet.

There a bamboo slip drawn from a gold vase will decide whether he or either of two other candidates will become the fourteenth political pontiff of Tibet, succeeding the Dalai Lama who died in December, 1933. The candidates, born about the time he died, have given what were considered indications of the divine spirit.

China's interest in him is based on the hope his China border origin might strengthen the nation's suzerainty over Tibet. A high Chinese official who is in the Lhasa-bound caravan will represent the Chinese government at the lot-drawing and subsequent coronation ceremonies.

The other candidates were born deeper in Tibet.

'Minute Man' Force to Be Composed of Those Who Have Been in Navy
in Last Four Years

Washington, July 20 (AP).—The navy started today recruiting a "minute man" force of several thousand former sailors, corresponding to the army's new enlisted reserve.

It will be composed of men who have just completed a term of active duty or have been out of the navy less than four years.

The force will be available to complete the crews of warships quickly in the event of war. Most warships operate in peacetime with only about 80 per cent of full complements.

An inducement of $20 a year was held out to the recruits. In return the new "Class F-2" fleet reserves must keep themselves in physical trim and for four years be ready for emergency recall to active service, but they no not have to drill.

Upwards of 7,000 will be enrolled in the next 12 months if tentative official estimates are realized. Congress provided initial funds.

The navy already has a fleet reserve force composed of ex-sailors who have retired to civilian life after completing at least 16 years of service.

For the time being, enlistment in the new reserve force is voluntary. Since July 1, when an enlistment period in the navy was lengthened from four to six years, the secretary has been empowered to require recruits to agree in advance to join the fleet reserve if they do not re-enlist.

The army has been signing up former soldiers for its new reserve force so fast that officers expect to enroll the full strength of 75,000 in less than the four years originally anticipated.

The quota for the first 12 months ending June 30 was 16,667 men, but 21,560 had signed up on that date. The army pays its reservists $24 a year to remain subject to recall.

Southbridge, Mass., July 20 (AP).—Doctors at Day Kimball Hospital at Putnam, Conn., amputated the left arm of a 14-year-old Putnam hit-run victim today a few hours after Southbridge police took into custody a girl who gave the name of socially-prominent Audrey Gray, 21, of Locust Valley, N. Police Captain Leo DuBois of Putnam said Miss Gray held without bail on a reckless driving charge, had signed a statement admitting her car struck the boy and his 10-year-old brother but asserted they swerved into her path as they rode along the highway on a bicycle, bound on a fishing trip. Doctors at the hospital said both were injured critically, but DuBois said the girl told police she drove on, believing them untrue.

Washington, July 20 (AP).—Attorney General Murphy branded today "indefensible and absolutely unjust" remarks by Governor Luren D. Dickinson of Michigan in which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's name was linked to drinking habits.

At his press conference, Murphy said: "Mrs. Roosevelt does not need to have anyone speak for her. She's the most interesting and useful of all first ladies in history. New York, July 20 (AP).—WPA workers and sympathizers were prevented by police today from hanging and burning in effigy the two leading members of a House committee investigating WPA protest work stoppages.

About 450 police patrolled Columbus Circle as demonstrators and on-lookers, estimated at 2,000 by police, gathered there for a protest meeting planned by the Workers' Alliance, union of WPA employees and the unemployed. The Alliance had called for a one day strike to protest dismissal of workers who had been on the WPA rolls more than 18 months.

Veterans Exempted

(By The Associated Press)

Lester W. Herzog, WPA Administrator for update New York, stated today that veterans were exempted from dismissal due to 18 months continuous employment. "It may be," he said, "that some veterans will receive termination slips because of errors or lack of information."

"If any veteran receives a termination slip because of 18 months continuous employment, such veteran should immediately call to the attention of the district office his preference status and the matter will be corrected immediately." He said that such preference is for veterans only and not to veterans' families.

Incomplete reports indicated that few workmen left their WPA jobs today in the national demonstration called by the Workers Alliance.

Disputed Figures

There were disputed figures in New York and other cities but most WPA officials over the country said work was going on normally.

At Washington President David Lasser of the Lawrence said it would be two days before "we get the whole picture" of how many took part.

The demonstration was called as a protest against the new relief act's requirement that all on WPA put in a 130-hour month and that persons on the rolls 18 months be furloughed to make room for new ones. The 130-hour requirement replaced the prevailing wage system.

Lt. Col. Brehon B. Somervell, WPA administrator in New York city, said a check had indicated no more than 4,000 were going out there. Sam Weisman, Alliance secretary, put the figure at more than 40,000.

In small towns, Lasser said, demonstrations probably will be confined to the lunch hour or after work but in larger cities, he said, workers "may be off an hour or two."

Hangings in Effigy

More than 400 police were assigned to Columbus Circle in New York where the demonstration program included the hanging in effigy of Representatives Woodrum (D-Va.) and Tabor (R-N.Y.), who were members of the House committee which investigated WPA prior to passage of the new relief act.

The stoppage was ordered in protest against the dismissal of WPA employees who have been on the rolls more than 18 months. Approximately 75,000 are being dropped here at the rate of 2,000 a day.

Officials of the WPA Teachers Union (AFL) said that 8,000 of the 15,000 employees on WPA education projects here had participated in a half-day work stoppage yesterday protesting further dismissals.

A request by H. Ralph Burton, chief investigator for the House appropriations sub-committee investigating the Federal Relief Agency, that Lieut. Col. Brehon B. Somervell, local WPA administrator, furnish him a list of the names of WPA workers who joined in the work stoppages was denounced by the Workers' Alliance as "an invasion of civil rights."

Wicks Tells Rotary Club About Recent Session at Capital

State Senator Arthur H. Wicks of the 29th Senatorial District in his annual vocational talk Wednesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel to fellow members of the Kingston Rotary Club gave a brief but interesting and enlightening talk on the recent session of the state legislature, which he termed the most hectic one in years. Two state lawmakers died since the session and in large measure their untimely deaths, he said, were due to the fevered session. Senator Wicks, who is chairman of the Public Service Commission, was introduced by Joseph Morgan, chairman of the program committee.

In the last Legislature, the senator pointed out, there were two lines of thought—one for spending and the other for economy. The Republican Party which was in the majority was economy minded and lopped off $25,000,000 from the proposed all-time high state budget of $415,000,000. In cutting this amount the proposed taxes on real estate and business were rejected and in their place a tax on cigarettes was placed. The increase in taxes on liquor were retained. The Legislature spared the people of the state these two taxes, which would have proven very oppressive to real estate and business.

There was massed pressure for spending by various pressure groups and the senator stated that it was high time that an organized majority put the organized minority in its proper place. Senator Wicks introduced the enabling act for the railroad crossing elimination bill and he told of some of the difficulties in getting the interested parties to agree on provisions in the measure. The old elimination bill called for payment by the municipality of one per cent, the state 49 per cent and the railroad 50 per cent. Under the provisions of the new bill, which was sanctioned by the people, the state pays the entire costs, with the railroad reimbursing the state up to 15 per cent of improvement to their property.

The local Senator also told of the Transit Bill which he introduced. The author of the bill said he was hit many times below the belt and frequently threatened but the bill passed and the governor signed it. Under this measure 30,000 employees were transferred to Civil Service. The C. I. O. fought hard against this bill and demanded a public hearing. They got their hearing and 7,000 attended in New York city. Included in the outfit was a bus load from Kingston. They had large placards, which read "Ulster County Demands the Wicks Bill Be Killed." The C. I. O., was termed a most unscrupulous mob by the speaker who said the main point in their program was demonstrations. And he said from newspaper accounts, they surely carry it out. With members paying dues at the rate of $1.50 per month, the great interest held by the C. I. O. was manifest.

Referring back to the Republican economy program, the lump sum method which the courts ruled against, the speaker said that the departments had generally cooperated. One that didn't was the Conservation Department, which balked at the request of eliminating a $10,000 item for a motion picture machine. Commissioner Osborne agreed to its elimination but instead he dismissed from his department five men who were paid $2,000 a year. It was an attempt to put the other fellow in the hole by making it look as if they were throwing men out of work. When the lump sum plan was declared unconstitutional, needless to say the men were re-hired and the machine thrown out.

To show how the cost of government has been rapidly rising, Senator Wicks submitted the following figures, the amounts covering the period since he took office at Albany:

The practice by either party trying to put the other fellow in the hole must stop, he said if we are to have genuine representative government.

The anguished walls that went up from the various departments, including the Education Department, were also emphasized by the senator. New York city said they couldn't operate night schools or kindergartens, but they are. He then read a list of high salaried employees in New York city and the recitation was most impressive. It was said that thousands of jobs would have to be eliminated if the economy program went into effect. In New Paltz Normal School two teachers are effected and one is on a sabbatical leave. In his stand for economy the Senator said he believed he truly represented the people. Economy must start now and a careful study of public expenditures and taxes will reveal many places where many economies can be made.

That economy was more important than spending to the people of Kingston, he said might be seen in the sale of properties here for non-payment of taxes. Last year the number here reached the total of 305.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Some Mistake

Indianapolis — An official of Riverside Amusement Park gave Albert Sanders, an employee, a $20 bill and told him to get $20 worth of nickels from stores at the next corner.

Sanders came back lugging several buckets of dill pickles.

"I could only get $16 worth of pickles," he apologized. "I'll have to go someplace else to buy the other $4 worth."

A Light Surprise

Minot, N. D. — R. F. Steinmetz, returning to his parked automobile, found one headlight shattered, but a new lens lay on the front seat.

Attached was this note, unsigned: "I backed into your light, Mr. So I got you a new lens. Sorry."

Emergency

Santa Fe, N. M. — Engineer Albee, rolling along the Denver and Rio Grand western narrow gauge tracks, leaned from the engine cab. He coughed. Out popped his false teeth.

Albee stopped the train. Passengers and crew joined in the search; located the plate.

Albee flicked off a cinder, climbed aboard and pulled into Santa Fe on time.

Taking A Good Look at America Costs Youth Hostellers $1 a Day

By SAM JACKSON

ON Feature Service Writer.

San Francisco — Dollar-a-day vacations are being enjoyed by several thousand young Americans this summer as the result of an idea imported from Europe. They are furnishing their own locomotion—chiefly bicycling or hiking—and are spending their nights at Youth Hostels. The cost of putting up at a hotel is 25 cents a night, plus 5 cents for fuel.

There are now 203 such hotels in the United States. All are in scenic or historical regions and are organized into "loops." Hostels are 15 to 20 miles apart.

The idea is that the traveler can cover this distance in one day afoot or on a bicycle, or, in rare cases, on horseback or in a canoe. Vacationists who want to whiz through 300 miles of scenery in a day via automobile are distinctly not welcome.

New chains of hostels this year have been set up in Missouri, eastern Iowa, Indiana, and West Virginia. There is a complete chain of hostels for the first time, running from Valley Forge, Pa., to Montreal. And three groups of boys and girls this year will travel to the World's Fair—most of the way in railroad cars set up as hostels.

Youth hostels originated in Europe. There are 4,500 in 20 countries. The idea was brought to the United States five years ago by Isabel and Monrovia Smith, who formerly were scout executives.

A Non-Profit Scheme

This couple set up the first hostel in Northfield, Mass. The first loop was in New England.

Today the movement is organized into the American Youth Hostels, Inc., a non-profit organization and is run by a distinguished board of governors headed by Dr. Mary E. Woolley, former president of Mt. Holyoke college.

The nation is divided into eight administrative regions. Hostels are multiplying. In 1938, there were 26,498 overnight guests. East of the Mississippi, 80 per cent of these arrived by bicycle, while in the west hikers and cyclists were evenly divided.

Fifty-four per cent were girls, 46 per cent boys.

And what is a hostel? It can be anything from a specially-built rustic lodge to a schoolhouse, just so it provides adequate separate quarters for men and women and measures up to certain standards in sanitation, cooking facilities, etc.

A large number of hostels are rural homes, where house, porch or barn provides ample bunk room. All are under control of "house parents"—normally the owners of the house—and are sponsored by a local citizens' committee.

Sing For Entertainment

Blankets are furnished and food is bought locally, but the hostellers carry a linen sleeping bag, tableware, and toilet articles. Drinking is forbidden, smoking discouraged. A wholesome sing-song is the usual evening entertainment and the curfew is 10 p. m.

A typical hostel accommodates 10 men and 10 women, and persons "from 4 to 94" may use it. People of high school age, however, are at present the greatest hostellers.

Sometimes in buying it is important to note whether a package can be recycled after it is used the first time.

1. You arrive at a hostel toward evening. Here Barbara Nielsen (center) and Nancy Jean McMillan are greeted by Mrs. W. E. Pimental, house mother of the Purisima hostel in California.

2. Then you gather wood for a fire to cook supper. These girls are Helen Nielsen and Betty Jo Stone.

3. Finally you fix up your bunk — and it sure looks good. Travelers carry their own sleeping bags.

Five heads of the movement and operate out of Northfield, accent the desirability of hosting in distant parts of the United States and abroad. This interchange of scenes and interest among the youth of the world, at low cost, is to them a major attraction and justification of the movement.

Burgess Jack Willin explained Philipsburgites were "too soft-hearted to make a good catcher."

'Keep to the Right' Is Early American Saying

Why do Americans drive to the right instead of to the left, as Englishmen and Frenchmen do, and as even Canadians did until the left hand steering wheel on American cars reformed them?

The practice dates from the 1750s, according to researchers of the American Road Builders' association. The driver of the great lumbering Conestoga wagons which came into general use about that time sat on the left wheel horse, the better to use his whip hand on the others of the team when necessary.

When two of these wagons met, therefore, they moved from the middle of the narrow road to the right, so the drivers, sitting on the left side, could be sure the left wheels got safely by. Smaller, lighter vehicles, naturally followed the deep ruts marked by the big freight vans.

These same drivers who so arbitrarily decreed that future generations of American citizens should drive to the right also fathered another familiar American institution. They wanted a long smoke, and a cheap one. Ingenious Pittsburgh tobaccoists were quick to oblige. They named their product "Conestogas" and the teamsters carried stocks of them in their boats. That is how stogies were born.

LONG HORSEBACK RIDE

The "stage coach caravan" that is to proceed from Texas to New York, 2,000 miles, taking 50 days for the trip, will be an interesting reminder of olden days, although somewhat synthetic in nature. An announcement says an attempt will be made to catch the spirit of frontier days, with riders bedding down every night and the stage coaches carrying the mail.

Those coaches will be covering quite a bit of ground per day, and also wearing out a good many horses, if they try to accomplish their average 40 miles a day. Presumably they will have relays every 10 or 20 miles. The horseback racing from stop to stop may interest more people. There will have to be relays for that, too. Twenty-five miles a day used to be reckoned a good day's work for a riding horse. The horses on this trip will be unfortunate in lacking old-time facilities and also old-time dirt roads.

The couriers of Genghis Khan, who carried messages for their master by horseback half a dozen centuries ago, would laugh at all this as child's play. There were stations at regular intervals clear across Asia. Couriers would cover regularly 100 miles a day or more, changing horses by leaping from back to back without stopping, and a celebrated horseman was credited with 400-miles in 24 hours.

BRIDAL PUBLICITY

Brides get their pictures in the paper more than they used to, but otherwise our modern society columns are rather tame compared with the old days. A WPA researcher in New York gets the credit for turning up a lot of such wedding notices as the following: "On Wednesday Evening (May 24th, 1786) was married Samuel Osgood to Mrs. Franklin, widow of Walter Franklin, late an opulent merchant of this city. The lady is possessed of every amiable accomplishment, added to a very large fortune."

And then the following: "On Monday evening, June 7, 1792, by the Rev. Mr. Beach, John Buchanan, Esq., to the amiable, adorable, incomparable, inflexible, invincible and nonparallel of her sex, Nancy Lucy Turner, both of this city."

Was it really kind, though, to call Miss Turner "nonparallel" instead of "nonpareil"? Some girls mightn't like it.

TOO MUCH ENTERTAINMENT

Americans today are criticised, and also pitied, as a nation of spectators, content with being merely amused while life itself sweeps past them. Dr. Alice I. Bryan, a Columbia University psychologist, says:

"They sit by the thousands in grandstands and moving picture theatres, lecture halls and concert stadiums, watching, listening, participating only through applause, while a handful of professionals put on a show."

"Worse still, we do not often exert ourselves even to attend a performance, but sit at home and listen to the symphony over a radio, hear the prize fight described by the special sports reporter, and read the utterances of our public men in the daily papers. We read about life instead of participating actively in first-hand adventures."

This tendency naturally leads to boredom and impotence. People should do more for themselves, create more of their own entertainment.

It's too bad that the breakfast repast at summer camps can't be set down for stay-at-home to marvel at. They'd never suspect the stimulating power of coffee, bacon 'n' eggs.

Yes, the British have "dressed for dinner" as usual at Tientsin, but they will never forget they undressed for the Japs.

PEDESTRIAN FOLLY

The biggest headache in our American traffic problem, says a committee of the National Safety Council, is the pedestrian. Last year three of every five persons killed in traffic accidents in our cities were afoot. And of 12,500 pedestrians so killed, two-thirds were violating traffic ordinances and doing an obviously unsafe thing. Moreover, 13 per cent of the pedestrian victims were reported as drinking, whereas only 9 per cent of drivers in fatal motor accidents had been drinking. So it looks as if pedestrians in general, formerly much stinned against in traffic matters, are now the chief sinners.

The remedy, says the Council, is to make them obey the stop signs and traffic signals just as motorists have learned to do.

PREMATURE POLITICS

It is unfortunate that Washington should be so dominated by professional politics at this time, and that the political campaign cannot be postponed for a few months. Next year, a man from Mars might think, would be time enough for next year's campaign.

At present, with imminent danger of a great war breaking out in Europe, with eastern Asia in chaos, with American foreign interests threatened in so many quarters and modern civilization itself probably hanging in the balance, it might be not only good citizenship but good politics for leaders of the two major parties to declare a truce on next year's campaign and join in patriotic and far-sighted handling of this year's business.

If nobody else will give Ed Windsor a job, the League of Nations might take him on as publicity man. And Wally could be his secretary.

Again it is demonstrated that mice are musical. A family of 'em at Latimer, Ont., have started housekeeping in a pipe organ.

When Japs and Russians start lying about each other's planes, we believe the worst of both of 'em.

An astronomer says this world looks blue from Mars. Probably it would from any planet.

EATING MORE CALCIUM

The one outstanding criticism by food experts of the ordinary diet found in the majority of homes is that it does not contain enough minerals, particularly calcium or lime.

Perhaps you have thought of lime only as being one of the necessary elements to form the bones and the teeth, and of some use in tooth powders, and to overcome an acid condition of the blood and tissues.

One of its most important uses recently discovered is that it is a real heart stimulant or tonic. Dr. P. Martin, Basel, in the Swiss Medical Journal, reports his studies on the influence of calcium during the training of athletes. The young athletes were mostly city dwellers who lived in modest circumstances and whose food was frequently deficient in calcium. Moreover, working in offices during the day they had little opportunity to benefit from fresh air and sunshine.

Dr. Martin made a test on young runners who ran 400 metres or about a quarter-mile. Of a group of twenty-seven athletes, fifteen underwent training without use of calcium; the other twelve were given large doses of calcium during the five months of training (December to April).

The reports of the results of the tests at the onset and the end of the training showed that the heart rate of the athletes was not only less in those using calcium but came back to normal (after running the 400 metres) in much less time than the athletes who had not used the calcium.

This proves that fatigue of the heart is less from doing a certain amount of work in those who use calcium regularly as compared with those not using calcium.

It is not suggested that the average individual should use calcium in its usual drug form—calcium lactate and calcium gluconate—although calcium preparations are greatly used in those who are tired and run-down physically.

The suggestion is that most normal individuals would do well to simply use more of the foods that are rich in calcium such as dairy products—cheese and milk; egg yolks; green vegetables—lettuce, cabbage, turnip tops, spinach; cauliflower, carrots, string beans, turnips, parsnips; fresh fruits—strawberries, raspberries, rhubarb, oranges.

Senate Foreign Policy Worst Blow to Economic Recovery That Has Yet Been Administered

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 20.—Many hundreds of millions of dollars may be lost to American business by the decision of the Senate foreign relations committee to do nothing at this session of congress with respect to the revision of the neutrality laws.

In many respects, the Senate policy is the worst blow to economic recovery that has been yet administered. The effects of the action will be felt in the switching of peace-time trade which heretofore might have gone to the United States.

European governments have been waiting to see whether, in the event of war, they could depend on the United States, not for troops or naval aid, but for war supplies. The fact that President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull wanted the laws revised has caused the European governments to await the outcome of the present session. Now, in self-protection, they must begin to make plans for the manufacture of articles which will be needed in war time as they cannot any longer depend on the United States.

The business affected is not merely that which might be shut off if the present neutrality law is not revised, but other articles of commerce which are vital to European democracies. Thus, trade will naturally go to South American countries and other parts of the world where some guarantees will be forthcoming that, in the event of war, there will be no interruption.

Perhaps the biggest single change in the commercial situation will be with respect to Canada, where preparations probably will be made soon to build certain factories for the assembling of the very war materials which the action of the Senate foreign relations committee would not bar from shipment.

Thus, American business men will see their opportunities for manufacturing certain products pass to Canada and other countries. This so-called war trade is supposed to have been the cause of American participation in the last war, so it will be contended by the isolationists that it is better to lose the money than to involve American boys in a foreign war.

But the other side of that argument is that not only will trade in war-time articles be lost, but also certain peace-time commerce. Likewise, the belief of the allied governments abroad is that there will be no war if they can be fully prepared now and if they can make it known to the Germans and Italians that a steady stream of supplies will be available. Spokesmen for England and France insist that no troops will be needed from this hemisphere and that the airplane will decide the issue. In order to demonstrate that the supplies will be forthcoming, it will be necessary for Great Britain and France to make arrangements with countries other than the United States. Argentina, for example, is said to be ready to develop some light manufacturing industries which can play a part in the making of war-time necessities. To be assured, however, that their capital will not be lost on plants built for war purposes, business men of other countries will demand a share of the normal trade. It is at this point that Europeans will begin to switch business.

Just what effect this may have on the delivery of airplane parts or on the setting up of new airplane factories across the Canadian border is difficult to say at this time, but that some change in the whole war trade set-up, including peace-time trade, is coming seems apparent. World trade is a big factor in economic recovery, and nations like the United States which cannot be depended upon to keep the necessary supplies going in war time will hardly expect to be favored as against countries which can assure a constant flow of goods both in war time and in peace time.

The Republican party in Congress has been most active in blocking action on the neutrality law revision at this session and it cannot be contended in this instance that the Republicans have been acting at the behest of the business interests of the country. The theory behind the Republican attack has been that they could convince the country Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull want to drag America into a foreign war, and that to agree to sell arms during a war would mean American participation. The President and the secretary of state, on the other hand, take the view that, if war comes, the Senate's indifference may prove to have been an encouragement to Hitler and Mussolini, and that passage of the bill program at this session of Congress might have prevented a European war.

The issue will be taken to the country by the president, as predicted in these dispatches earlier this week. Again Mr. Roosevelt has been handed a campaign opportunity on a platter by the Republican minority, and, incidentally, the New Deal has been given campaign material on how the business interests inspired good will between America, France and Britain and contributed to the loss of American commerce in peace-time products. Know Your Law

By CARROLL E. MEALEY

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles

(Editor's Note: Below are presented some questions and answers on the subject of the Vehicle and Traffic Law and rules of the road. Readers are invited to submit questions to Information Service, Bureau of Motor Vehicles, Albany, N. Y.)

Q. What does the new headlight law require of the operator of a car with regard to meeting and passing approaching vehicles, and with regard to driving in lighted areas?

A. The new law, which went into effect July 1, prohibits the use of the upper beam of headlights when meeting and passing oncoming vehicles and while driving in lighted areas. The operator, in these circumstances, is required to switch to the lower beam. In the case of an approaching vehicle, the switch must be made when the oncoming vehicle is within 500 feet.

Q. What is meant by "dimming"? The law does not define "dimming." In common usage, the term may mean one of two things: either the use of parking lights or the operation of switching headlights from the upper to the lower beam. Prior to the advent of multiple beam headlights, dimming referred to turning off the headlamp beam and switching to "dimmer" or parking lights. This is dangerous as it is not required in modern practice because use of the lower beam of headlights should eliminate glare. Use of this lower beam of the headlights cannot accurately be described as "dimming," however, because the lower beam does not throw less light than the upper beam; it simply tilts the light beams downward.

Q. What are "parking lights"? A. Parking lights are the lights on the front of the car required by law to be lighted when the car is parked. These lights, which may be described accurately as "dim" lights, may be in the headlights, on the cowl or on the fenders of your car.

Eagle's Petition Is Turned Down By Judge Schirick

Justice Harry E. Schirick has denied the application of Max C. Eagle for a mandamus order against the board of water supply of the city of New York, an application made for appointment of commissioners of appraisal to fix compensation for damages done by Eagle's Nest. The property is located at Montela in the Delaware section 7 section.

Mr. Eagle claimed his property had been damaged to the extent of $4,500 by test borings which were made on the premises back in 1928 when the city of New York was making test borings to ascertain the depth of bed rock in a preliminary survey of the Upper Rondout valley water project. He claimed his property had been damaged and asked for appointment of commissioners of appraisal to hear and determine the matter. Application was made to Justice Schirick on May 5 for appointment of such commission. Maurice Lockport appeared for petitioner and William C. Chanler, corporation counsel for the city of New York, appeared for Henry R. Bright and John E. Egan.

The application was opposed by the city of New York on the grounds that the proceeding was not properly brought and a motion was made to dismiss the petition of Eagle as a matter of law.

Justice Schirick held that the petitioners had no cause of action which may be heard by commissioners of appraisal and holds that any action which may have been a civil action triable by a court of record. Justice Schirick's memorandum follows:

This is an application to compel the respondents to move for the appointment of commissioners of appraisal to determine the damages suffered by the petitioner. Respondents have moved to dismiss the petition as a matter of law.

The petition fails to show any damage which would come within the jurisdiction of a commission. It is not shown that the alleged damage was caused in connection with the condemnation of property. Any claim that he may have should be asserted by way of a tort action.

The petition is also defective in that it is directed against the wrong party. Section 841-7.0 of the Administrative Code of the City of New York gives to the corporation counsel of the city of New York the power and the duty of applying for the appointment of commissioners of appraisal.

The petition is dismissed.

Science Gets New Information About Influenza Virus

Chicago, July 20 (UP)—Science may be on the threshold of a great discovery—the source of influenza epidemics—the American Medical Association announced today.

The quest for the origin of such sources as the great human "flu" pandemic of 1918 has led to hogs and earthworms.

So strong is the evidence that the association's journal warned physicians that "hogs and earthworms may conceivably serve as the source of some future human epidemic."

The journal's editorial told of research—swifly surprising results—done by Dr. R. E. Shope of Rockefeller Institute.

Dr. Shope's observations were so astounding that if they are confirmed much of the medical literature on virus diseases such as poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, will have to be rewritten, the journal said.

Finding the origin of the acute infectious disease, which killed thousands and disabled millions in Europe and America in the summer and autumn of 1918, would give doctors their first chance to strike at the source of an outbreak.

For some time bacteriologists have believed influenza might be caused by a filtrable virus, a poison exceedingly small.

Dr. Shope concluded that earthworms were carriers of swine influenza virus. He found that earthworms swallow the eggs of swine lungworms, that the larvae of these parasites develop in the earthworms and reenter hogs when they eat earthworms.

New Palitz Normal to Have Special Lecture on Safety

As part of a special program in safety education being conducted this summer in cooperation with 47 colleges and universities by New York University's Center for Safety Education, Miss H. Louise Cottrell, a member of the staff of the Center, is visiting teaching institutions in four states, including New York. Her schedule includes New Palitz Normal School which she will visit on Tuesday, July 25.

The one-day program to be conducted at New Palitz Normal School by Miss Cottrell is part of the campaign of instruction and research in safety education which has been carried on under the direction of Dr. Herbert J. Stack by the Center for Safety Education since its establishment at New York University a year ago under a special grant from the National Conservation Bureau, accident-prevention division of the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives.

Prospects are far above average fruit crops this year both in the United Kingdom and in Continental Europe, according to reports received in the Foreign Agricultural Service of the Department of Agriculture from its offices in London, Paris and Berlin. Should favorable climatic conditions continue in European producing areas during June, American exporters may expect considerably more competition during the 1939-40 season, particularly for apples and pears.

Dudenhauser Farm To Change Hands

Mann and Gross, nationally known real estate agency, who recently sold Elissa Landi a stone house and estate near Kingston, announced last night that negotiations are practically complete for the sale of Dr. F. J. Dudenhauser's 10-acre homestead farm in St. Remy.

The purchaser is Professor

Nicholas Ceglinsky, of Hope avenue, Passaic, N. J., who is well known for his work in Washington, D. C., translating government documents. Mr. Ceglinsky is a University of Vienna graduate, author and lecturer.

The Dudenhauser property comprises 10 acres of fine land, six acres tillable, the rest in pasture, timber and water. A brook runs through the place into an oval pond, large enough for boating, bathing and ice skating. The residence has two stories and attic: 12 large airy rooms and full length porch facing scenic surroundings. The sale was consummated by the Mann-Gross Agency, 277 Fair street, Kingston.

Judge Frederick G. Traver, represented the seller, F. J. Dudenhauser, M. D., and Frederick

H. Stang and Robert Groves acted as attorneys for the purchaser, Nicholas Ceglinsky.

Mr. Ceglinsky, his wife, Anna and Mrs. Mary Tkachuk will make their new home on this property. A Francis Arthur acted as housing consultant, assisting Mr. Ceglinsky to locate the exact type of property in Ulster county desired.

Dickinson Says Mrs. FDR Might Have Set Formula

ing to the proper quantity.

"These women," the governor added, "evidently knew how to do this."

Arrangements had been made for the 80-year-old Republican to speak over nine stations of the Michigan radio network, but it was broadcast by only the Lansing station in whose studio he read his speech.

None of the other stations received advance copies of the address, and network executives explained manuscripts had to be approved.

The theme of his talk was similar to his statement last week deploring "high life" at the conference in New York state a few weeks ago, but it covered a wider field.

Dickinson said "in the main" the governors' conference was attended by "high class people" and that those whose conduct he had condemned constituted a minority.

"It is not what one contacts immediately at these high class functions that is the danger," the octogenarian said, "but it is what they are taking away."

"Mothers, would your girl, if she had been there and not under your protection and facing the fascinations, brilliance, high life systems and customs, brilliant scenery and surroundings—paired with, or alone with, strangers with that unlimited flow of liquors and urged repeatedly to drink—could she have come back the same girl that you permitted to go?"

The veteran crusader for temperance and prohibition remarked that there was no "real bright hope" of removing liquor from "the reach of your girls" at present.

There is "more danger because of the popularizing of drink in public functions now than there was in the old saloon days," Dickinson said. "Social events are not exempt from the plying of the arts that have always ruined girls."

Miss Talley Gets Child Nine Months, Must Post Bond

New York, July 20 (AP)—After a bitter court fight during which she and her estranged husband accused each other of moral turpitude, Marion Talley has been provisionally awarded custody of her 4-year-old daughter for nine months of each year.

Attorneys for Adolph Eckstrom, husband and former voice instructor of the singer, said he would appeal the decision if it is approved by Judge Alfred Frankenthaler, now on vacation.

The award, announced yesterday by Referee Richard P. Lydon, grants Eckstrom custody of the child, called Susan by her mother and Betty Ruth by her father, for the remaining three months. It provides that Miss Talley post a $25,000 bond for 10 years to guarantee terms of the decision will be carried out.

Ruling on the immorality charges made by both principals, Lydon held that "although a great deal of testimony as to this question was taken there is absolutely no proof to establish any such fact."

He agreed, however, with Miss Talley's charge that it was "improper" for Miss Esther Lundell to live in the four-room Eckstrom apartment. Miss Lundell testified she and Eckstrom were "like brother and sister" and that she had cared for the child since the girl was two weeks old.

During the suit Eckstrom contended Miss Talley had shown little interest in her daughter and left the baby shortly after its birth in St. Paul, Minn., to pursue a movie career.

Actual Weight of Germs Determined by Science

Germs are so small that it takes 300,000,000,000 of an average germ to weigh a pound. Under favorable conditions they multiply so rapidly that one germ at the end of a day, would have 16,500,000,000 descendants.

Germs, as seen under the microscope, appear as little round dots, or rod-shaped organisms or as long, slender filaments. They get into the body with food and water, with the air we breathe, through open wounds on the skin, or the bite of an insect. Some germs produce disease by developing a poison which is absorbed by the body. Others break up in the body and the products of their disintegration are poisonous. Sometimes germs float around in clumps of the blood and cause death by developing in overwhelming numbers. Some germs attack certain organs of the body, and so injure them that death results.

Germs pick the places in the body in which they can live best. The pneumococcus settles in the lungs and produces pneumonia. It may also infect the eye or the spine. Germs of meningitis nearly always settle on the coverings of the spinal cord and the brain. The typhoid germ settles in the intestines. The germs of hydrophobia and epidemic encephalitis attack the nervous system. The germs of tuberculosis, although preferably entering by way of the lung, may affect any tissue in the body. Thus there is tuberculosis of bones, joints, the eye and the nervous system. The organism that causes syphilis attacks every organ and tissue in the body.

The best preventive for anyone is to keep in such fit condition that infectious disease will not readily attack him. That means eating a suitable diet, getting enough exercise and sunshine, enough rest and cleanliness, including frequent bathing and plenty of soap and water.

Even before graduation, more than two-thirds of the 76 members of the 1939 class of the New York state college of home economics were lined up for jobs, marriage, travel, or advanced study next fall; eight have positions pending; and only twelve are uncertain of their autumn activities, the college reports.

Fair Executives' Salaries Slashed for Economy

New York, July 20 (AP)—Salaries of all New York World's Fair executives, including President Grover Whalen, who is reported to receive $100,000 a year, have been slashed 10 per cent in the economy drive resulting from unsatisfactory attendance.

"There will be no more discharges," Whalen said in announcing the cuts yesterday. He denied reports 1,000 to 3,000 of the Fair's 7,000 employees had been let out and put the number of those dismissed at 500 since July 1.

Despite Whalen's announcement there would be no more lay-offs, the New York Times said 150 members of the fair's police department received dismissal notices last night.

Attendance has improved in the last few days. The gates clocked

213,842 persons yesterday, including 179,973 paid admissions, for the best Wednesday record since the fair opened.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Tough Fight Before He Gets Roses on Chest

New York, July 20 (AP)—Warned by physicians that he would die of cancer within a few months, Claude Joseph Bradley, 53, a cement salesman, was the "life of the party" given for him last night by 200 friends at the Montauk Club.

Bradley himself said it was a gay and lively affair for a coming corpse, with jokes and tall stories, laughter and clinking glasses—and for more than an hour, Bradley played the piano.

At his table there was a vase of roses, and he picked one and put it in his lapel.

Bradley said physicians gave him only two or three months to live.

"But maybe they were wrong," he said. "Anyway, before they put roses on my chest, it's going to be a tough fight."

It was a "swell blowout," Bradley said, adding that if he accepted all the invitations for week-ends and parties and trips he received at the party, he'd "have to live for 24 years."

Hill Was Annoyed

Scituate, Mass., July 20 (AP)—John S. Hill, awakened by the continued sounding of an automobile horn, was exasperated. He stuck his head out of the window to give somebody a good bawling out. State's Campsites More Popular Than in 1938

Albany, N. Y., July 20 (AP)—New York's public campsites are approximately 20 per cent more popular this summer than a year ago, with 261,108 visitors recorded between May 27 and July 9.

The department also reported low streams and high water temperatures caused by recent warm and dry weather have killed "thousands" of fish in the upstate vacation lands.

Summer Cowden, superintendent of the bureau of fish culture, said the regions most seriously affected were the Catskills and the Schoharie Valley. Streams in the Schoharie were reported at their lowest level in 10 years.

part of the city's recreation program.

When seen yesterday Miss Bowers expressed herself as delighted with the fine program that Kingston has inaugurated with a limited budget, and complimented Chairman Harry L. Edson, and Recreation Director Sidney Lutzin for their work in promoting the program here.

In her inspection of the playground program she was especially pleased she said with the playground newspapers, which were well written and planned. The parks she found were established in places and localities where they could be used by the greatest number. Another thing that she found interesting was the community night programs at the various parks.

Miss Bowers said she had attended several such programs while in Kingston, and was delighted with the attractive and varied programs given. She was also delighted, she said, by the fact that several of the parks had organized their own orchestras. She believed that Community Night programs should be held weekly in the various parks, and advocated the installation of more benches in the parks for the use of those who attended the programs.

Kingston, she said, had done much in a comparatively short time and had adopted a broad program that was of interest not only to children but to adults as well.

Asked as to what suggestions she had to make as a result of her inspection of the program here she said that she believed all playgrounds should be kept open until 9 o'clock at night, five days a week, with a man and woman supervisor in charge at all times.

She said she realized that with a limited budget it would be impossible to adopt all of the suggestions she made, but believed that it would be well to adopt a long range program.

Makes Suggestions
Some of her suggestions were the installation of lighted horse-shoe courts at night so that the game could be played during the evening hours as well as during the day; the installation of more ping pong tables, and the installation of games such as badminton, tetherball, box hockey, handball and shuffleboard and croquet.

Miss Bowers believed that benches should be placed around the various game areas so that spectators could be seated and enjoy watching others play.

She also believed in the adoption of a broad winter program and the establishment of community centers in all sections of the city where those from 15 years and up could meet socially and enjoy various indoor games and activities.

Miss Bowers said she was particularly interested in activities for girls and women. She said that if possible she believed that a woman should be engaged as an assistant to Mr. Lutzin who would have full charge of activities for the girls and women.

Community Centers
Throughout the country, she said, people were getting away from the term playgrounds, and play areas were becoming more widely known as community centers where the whole family could meet and enjoy themselves with-

FOUR BLIND DATES

By Edwin Ruff

Chapter 38

The Chiseler's Chance

THE Chiseler had an inspiration. It was a fascinating possibility and one which might, by not too great a stretch of the imagination, lead to peace and security for his declining years. And though his stay at Salsair Acres had been brief and fraught with tribulation, he had formed an attachment for the place. Therefore he decided to gamble splendidly. He got to his feet and moved majestically to an obscure corner of the room. He was just time. A knock sounded on the door.

"Dipsang!" cracked an imperious voice from without. "Are you here?" The next instant the door was flung open.

The Chiseler, standing grave and silent in his out-of-the-way corner, perceived four individuals in backfield formation blocking the doorway. In the quarterback position stood a slight, testy-looking man whose lips were torturing an unlighted cigar. At left halfback was a tall, rangy young gentleman who seemed amused by something or other. The position of right half was filled by one of the prettiest girls that the Chiseler had ever seen. And in the fullback's place rested a bulbous individual. The quarterback spoke first, as is customary.

"Dipsang!" demanded the quarterback, chewing furiously on the cigar. "What has been going on here?"

By now Mrs. Dipsang had hoisted the Dipsang bulk to the Dipsang feet.

"M-M-Mr. Adams!" she exclaimed, unnerved. "I-I thought you were in Europe."

Richard Craftonbury advanced into the room. The rest of the backfield, getting the signal correctly, moved with him.

"Europe be hanged!" said Richard Craftonbury. "I came home looking for peace and quiet. I walk into my house to find it all lit up like a gambling hall and some kind of infernal commotion going on. And I haven't been home ten minutes—not ten minutes, mark you—before some confounded blackguard sneaks up behind me, his me over the head and ties me up in my own smokehouse. And what I want to know is who did it?"

"I-I really couldn't say," said Mrs. Dipsang, in great distress. The Chiseler, in his corner, nodded. So this was what had happened. He wondered how on earth Coletti or Dorothy, or both, had come to get their signals crossed. "What's that?" he asked Richard Craftonbury. "You can't say?"

And in heaven's name is wrong with people around here tonight? Doesn't anybody know anything about anything? I'm going to... who in the dickens is that?" He had suddenly perceived the Chiseler, standing nobly aloof in his corner. He stared at him, eyes bulging, cigar bobbing up and down. Then he thrust out a terrible forefinger. "Who's that, I say?"

It was then that the Chiseler comprehended himself in such manner as to indicate that when he turned crook the state had lost a great Thespian. He strode forward with dignity, arms folded, head bowed on his breast, mustachios flowing silkily in the breeze from the window. For a moment he confronted them. And even the red-and-white underpants failed slightly to detract from the solemnity of his aspect. Then the Chiseler spoke.

"My name," he said, slowly and impressively, "is Dipsang. Austin Sebastian Dipsang, able-bodied seaman. I am at your service."

ASTONISHED, Mrs. Dipsang gasped and jumped, but no one noticed her. The Chiseler had commanded the undivided attention of every one. A silence greeted his pronouncement. Then Richard Craftonbury, eyes bulging even more, gave tongue.

"Buh?" he said.

"Dipsang," repeated the Chiseler sonorously. "My name is Dipsang."

Saga Of The Sea

RICHARD CRAFTONBURY regained his poise.

"But I thought you were lost off—off—"

"Hatteras," supplied Mrs. Dipsang mechanically.

The Chiseler turned to her.

"I see that your memory is as faulty as ever, my dear," he said easily. "I was not lost off Cape Hatteras. On the contrary, our ship foundered off the Florida keys. Never, if I live to be a thousand, shall I forget that bitter night. The seas were mountainous, gentlemen, mountainous. The wind had teeth. We were, however, able to launch our boats. I and a few companions were alone on the—the waste of the ocean. I managed, to permit the minds of the audience to take in that graphic picture."

"Well, go on, go on," urged Richard Craftonbury, who liked tales of adventure. "What happened next?"

"The storm," proceeded the Chiseler smoothly, "tossed our little boat about as though it were an eggshell."

"To make a long story short, my companions and myself were washed ashore on a lonely island in the West Indian group. On this island were natives, practically barbarians, who informed us in the sign language that the place was out of the course of ships and seldom visited by them. This proved to be the case. When I tell you that we existed there for nearly nine years—virtual Robinson Crusoes—without sighting a single vessel, you will have some idea of the isolation of the spot to which Providence—ahem—relegated us."

"Doesn't sound reasonable in this day and age," objected Richard Craftonbury.

"The sea," said the Chiseler, "is vast and mysterious. We were off the beaten track, stranded, without means of communication. To conclude, we were rescued three months ago by a fishing smack which had been blown off her course. This vessel brought us to Jacksonville, Florida. Eventually I made my way to New York where, through relatives who had believed me dead, I was able to trace my wife. And tonight we are reunited, after these long and—er—wasted years. Gentlemen, I am a man of sentiment. This—this occasion is too much for me." He produced an handkerchief and blew his nose violently. After which, ostentatiously, he wiped the corners of his eyes.

Richard Craftonbury, having nothing better to do, lighted his cigar.

"It's a saga," he said.

"So it is," agreed the Chiseler, mastering his emotions.

"Funny I didn't read about it in the papers," said Richard Craftonbury.

The Chiseler smiled tolerantly. "I presume that the press was not interested," he said. "You must remember that we were forgotten men from a forgotten ship."

"Well, since you're here, man, put your pants on."

"I had been on the point of retiring," said the Chiseler, with extreme delicacy.

"Retiring? Ha! Anybody who thinks he can sleep in this house is crazy." And then, all at once, Richard Craftonbury paused, assailed by a terrible thought which drove all others out of his head.

"Coming Home"

NOW that he considered Dipsang's fantastic tale, he told himself that he didn't believe a word of it. It was far more likely that the fellow had merely deserted his wife for a few years. Mr. Adams knew his sailors. They had girls in every port. Doubtless Dipsang had been amusing himself around the world and had only come back to his wife because he was down on his luck at present. But that didn't alter the fact that he was back. And in all probability, he would want to remove his wife from Salsair Acres. And that, Richard Craftonbury vowed silently, must not be. He paled at the very thought of it. Mrs. Dipsang was the best housekeeper Mr. Adams had ever had. He must handle this matter with care, however. He must conciliate Dipsang, treat with him.

"Well," said Dipsang, "he said, 'now you're back in civilization, what are you going to do?'"

"My plans for the future," said the Chiseler, adhering rigidly to the truth for the first time since entering the preserves of Salsair Acres, "are vague and indefinite."

"You speak as if you had some education," said Richard Craftonbury.

"I assure you," the Chiseler said, "that I had an excellent education. I was being groomed for the clergy. But, a headstrong boy, I went counter to the wishes of my parents and ran away to sea. I regret it now, of course. But too late. Still, I will pick up the broken threads. I will find work of some kind."

"I'll tell you what you ought to do, Dipsang," said Richard Craftonbury enthusiastically. "You ought to ally yourself with some good, sound company. With a going concern."

"Precisely," agreed the Chiseler. "I had something of the sort in mind."

"I have it," said Richard Craftonbury. "I'll find you a berth on one of our tankers. Second mate or boat's mate or something."

Behind his magnificent mustachios, the Chiseler smiled. He was exactly not a lover of the sea, except in fancy. As a matter of fact, he had once been violently ill on the Staten Island ferry. However, he declined the offer of the job on the oil tanker in nautical manner.

"I've decided," he said now to Richard Craftonbury. "I'm done with the sea. You will appreciate, I am sure, that after my harrowing experiences the sight and sound of the ocean sickens me."

Richard Craftonbury snorted. He was not accustomed to having jobs he offered turned down.

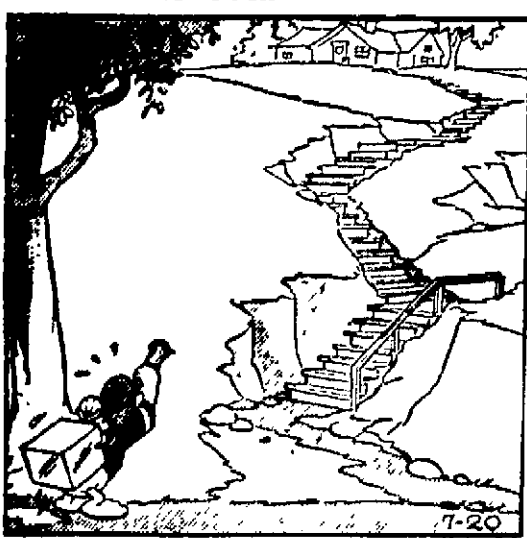

"Well," he said, grudgingly, "what suggestions have you to make? Some provision for your future has to be made."

The Chiseler smiled inwardly. It was extremely good of this irritated gentleman to be concerned for his future. Now, if the gentleman cared to a little proposal that he would put forward presently all would be beer and skittles.

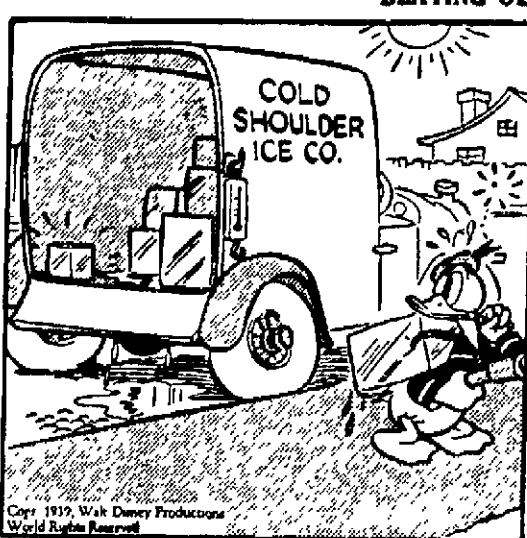

"It is strange," he said, "how, every so often, a place or a location seems to twine itself around one's heart. Tonight as I approached your estate and gazed at your broad acres and stately trees, I experienced an unaccountable feeling of belonging to them. My limited vocabulary does not permit an accurate description of the sensation. But I stood for a moment by the head of your driveway gates at the head of my driveway and I said to myself, 'Dipsang, you're coming home.' He stopped, remembering that he was a seafaring man. "Douse my to'galants, if I didn't."

Concluded tomorrow.

PHOENICIA

Phoenicia, July 19.—Frank Smith has been awarded the contract to paint the Freedom Plains Presbyterian Church. He visited his home here for two days. Beverly Smith is spending her vacation at Dundee. Mr. and Mrs. Klingenberg are back for the summer. Mrs. George Koch, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. George Koch, Jr., are spending some time at their bungalow. John Tyrrel, who was in charge of the Victory Store, has taken another position. A. C. Schoonmaker is now in charge.

Life is like a roller-coaster—a lot of ups and downs and breathtaking moments ending just where you started.

A man boasted that he had been in every hospital in town. Friend—Impossible! What about the maternity hospital? Man—I was born there.

The reason why a woman wears furs in the summer and a low neck dress in the winter is because she is a woman.

Canvasser (explaining the terms of sale)—You pay only a small deposit. Then you make no more payments for six months. Lady—Who told you about us?

Franklin—He's been sitting there all day, doing nothing but wasting time. Elizabeth—How do you know? Franklin—Because I have been sitting here watching him.

Brains There isn't much difference physically in any of us. We all have two arms, two legs, a pair of eyes, and a body to operate them. Where we differ is in our hearts and souls. Human machinery is given us, but we must develop the brain to operate it properly.

Landlady—If you don't stop playing that saxophone you'll drive me crazy.
Sax Player—Ha! Ha! Ha! You're crazy already. I stopped playing an hour ago.

Some people are like flying machines—No good on earth.

Clarice—Why does Mary look so lovesick when she reads a newspaper?
Gladys—Her fiancée is a type-setter.

Hopefulness is of itself a ground for hope.

America is a great country—even with Congress in session.

Hal—What are you looking through all those war records for?

Cal—I am trying to find out who General Delivery was.

Bill—I can see good in everything. Fred—Can you see good in the dark?

"I don't know about you, honey, but I have found that the dimmest lights have the most scandal power." Lighting men please conform.

Preacher—In time of trial, what brings us the greatest comfort? Person (who should never have been admitted)—An acquittal!

Wife (looking over travel folders)—Why not take an ocean cruise, dear?
Husband—Hm-m, beggars can't be cruises.

Some people wouldn't enjoy perfect peace, because there wouldn't be anything to kick about.

Daughter—Daddy dear, what is your birthstone?
Daddy—I think it must be a grindstone.

Approximately 125 young people and those interested in a Christian youth movement gathered at the hall of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church Wednesday evening in response to a call issued by the Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union in the form of a mid-summer rally.

A panel discussion on the topic, "What Does Christian Endeavor Offer the Young People of Ulster County?" was the feature of the program. Richard Talleur, of Clinton Corners, a member of the executive board of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union, was in charge of the discussion, and four speakers from young people's groups in Ulster county were heard on two sub-topics, "The Need for an Interdenominational Program" and "The Program of Christian Endeavor." These speakers were Miss Dorothy Kopf, of the First Presbyterian Church, of Kingston, Miss Helen Anderson, of the Flatbush Reformed Church, Miss Frances Barnhart, of the Stone Ridge Church, and Miss Helen Wesp, of the Rosendale Reformed Church.

Eighmey, president of the Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union, presided at the meeting, and announced definite plans for the annual Minnewaska Vesper service to be held on Sunday evening, September 10, at 7 o'clock, at the Cliff House on the summit of the mountain. THE LITTLE LASSIES—A most exclusive group at the Santa Barbara, Cal., state college is the "Five Foot Club" whose members are would-be teachers under five feet in height. And to make sure that no co-ed squeezes into the club, there's this measuring frame being demonstrated by president, Beryl Davidson, 4' 11 1/4", and Walter Gilliam, 6' 6" sophomore.

FISHERMAN'S FANCY—While the hero of this story, their 15-year-old son, Jack, stays in bed to avoid a cold, Mr. and Mrs. William Donaldson float over a record 31-inch steelhead trout caught by Jack in the Santa Ynez river near Santa Barbara, Cal. The lad was so excited over hooking this beauty that he tumbled from a tree, 10 feet into stream.

SUN... FUN—Whimsical Francis Day, London stage star, wore flower-rimmed sun glasses at Soho fair in London.

FOR HIS KING AND EMPIRE—No combination of muscles was too involved or difficult for this spartan Britisher who used a sling to steady his rifle during recent Imperial matches at Bisley, England. Once in gear with his sling, arm and leg locks, the marksman, a Major McGowan, drew a careful bead on a target. British Empire sharpshooters were competing.

SPIES MUST HALT HERE—"Out with spies and agents" optimistically reads banner at Danzig-Polish border.

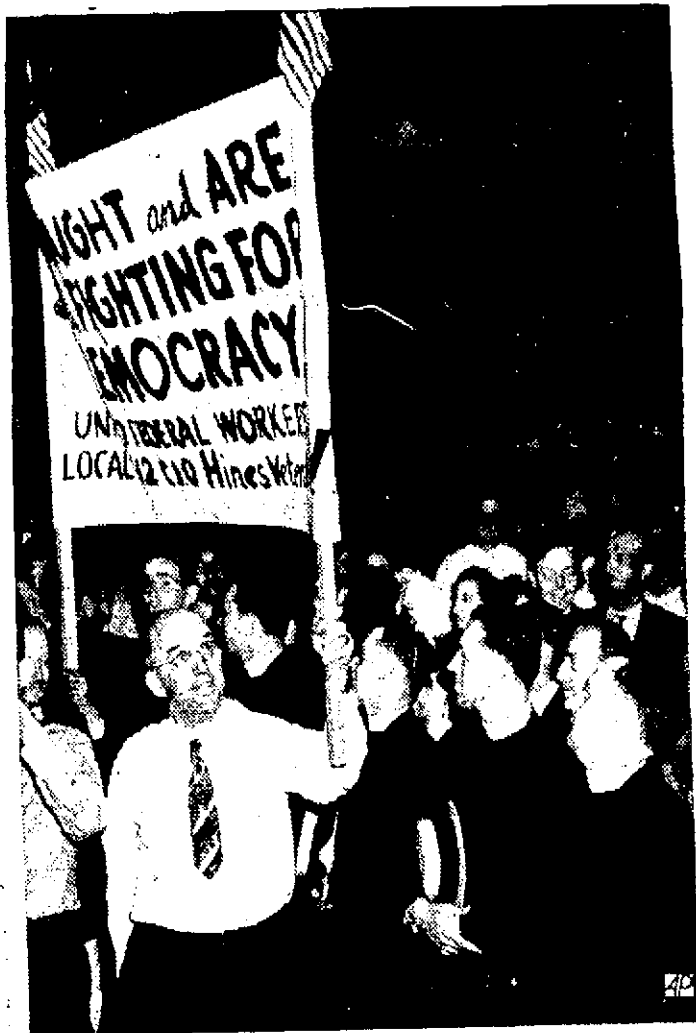

BASEBALL CASUALTIES

PITCHED-HITTING—Joe Medwick, slugging left fielder with the St. Louis Cardinals, doubles up on the ground after being hit on the thigh by a Manuel Salvo fast pitch in the Cardinals-Giants game won by Cards, 4-3. This was in the fifth. Medwick left the game and in the ninth, disaster again struck the diamond: the Giants' Lou Chiozza's leg was broken.

TROUBLE-SHOOTER—Lengthy reports on conditions in the Free City of Danzig are given his government by Sir Howard Wm. Kennard, British ambassador to Poland.

CIO RALLY—Clergymen were among the crowd at a meeting of CIO union members in Chicago where the Packinghouse Workers Organizing Committee has been active, seeking contracts in the packing industry. John L. Lewis addressed rally, and the Rev. Bernard Sheil, auxiliary bishop of the Roman Catholic archdiocese in Chicago, said invocation and urged labor peace.

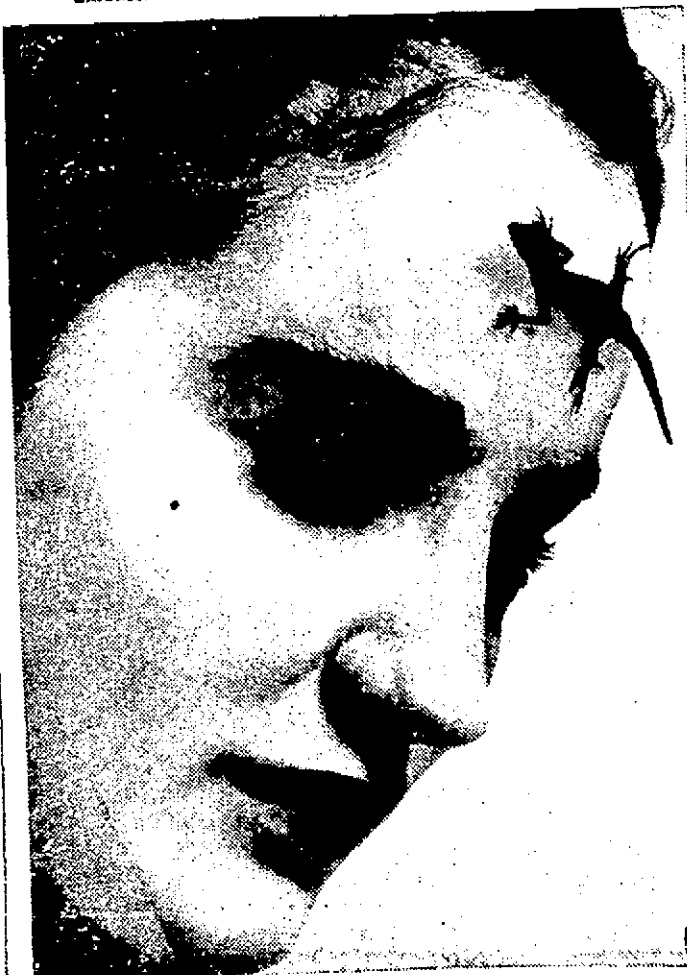

WINGS—How do American aviation schools train women fliers? That's the question for which Madie Torres, 22, Turkish air ace, plans to find answer when she comes to United States for an inspection of nation's air-plane facilities.

A GOOD SOLDIER—Still smiling, Georgia Coleman renews her battle for health, entraining at Los Angeles for a resort in Dansville, N. Y. The former Olympic diving champion has been invalidated by a form of spinal inflammation.

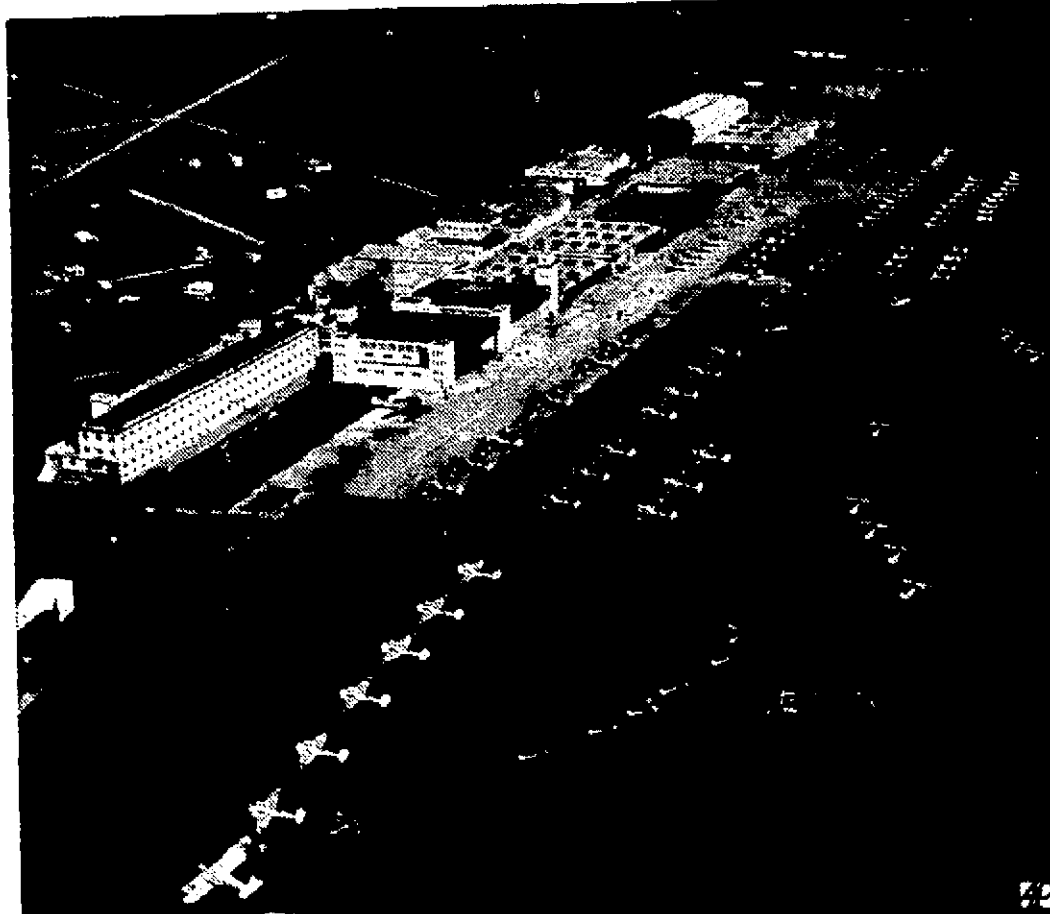

SOCK FOR THE SOX—On the ground lies Joe Cronin, Boston Red Sox manager who was knocked unconscious in a collision with Frank Higgins of the Detroit Tigers in a game won by the Tigers, 13-6. Cronin later resumed play but he left the game at the seventh inning. Around manager are, left to right: Higgins, Sox Catcher Peacock, Umpire Quinn, Sox Infielder Doerr.

MATTER OF MODES—Proving that she doesn't belong to that group of humans that dislikes all members of the reptile family, Shirley McCullagh wore a living chameleon to match her look, at the Banff Springs hotel in Canada.

SEAWORTHY—For that beach promenade when the wind's blowing, Marion Martin of New York recommends this hand-crocheted fishnet bathing suit with a matching cape.

ARGENTINA'S BIRDS SETTLE TO EARTH—Evidence of the air strength of Argentina, South American country which vies with Brazil in progressiveness, is presented in this view of El Palomar, main base of the Argentine air force, outside Buenos Aires. Photo was made just before 170 planes took off to help celebrate 125th anniversary of nation's independence.

MORE GRIEF FOR GIANTS—Worried teammates carry Lou Chiozza, utility infielder, off the diamond after Lou's collision with a co-worker, Joe Moore, resulted in a broken left leg for the former. The loss of Chiozza, during Giants-Cards game won by Cards, 4-3, hit Giants when they were still plagued by the suspension of Bill Jurges and illness of Harry Downing.

John S. Wise Secretary Of National Horse Group

New York, July 20 (AP)—The election of John S. Wise of New York as secretary of the National Horse Show Association was announced today by Amory L. Haskell, association president. Wise succeeds Whitney Stone, vice president who was also secretary but asked to be relieved of the duties of the latter office.

In announcing the election, Haskell said plans for the 54th show at Madison Square Garden November 4-11 already were taking shape, with the prospect of an exceptionally large entry of European military teams in spite of the unsettled conditions abroad.

Outmoded theories on birds: That swallows hibernate in mud; small birds travel on big birds' backs; birds migrate to the moon.

Held for Ransom

Jerusalem, July 20 (AP)—G. R. Golden, 29-year-old Akron, O., missionary, was reported by his father today to have been kidnapped by a band of Arab rebels near the Dead Sea for $5,000 ransom. The elder Golden, also a clergyman, told authorities he, too, had been captured but had been released to return here to arrange the ransom. A strong detachment of British troops began to search through the hills.

13 Plead Innocent To Mass Murders

Trials to Start Monday in Philadelphia Court

Philadelphia, July 20 (AP)—Thirteen persons charged with complicity in seven deaths attributed to the east's mass murder syndicate pleaded innocent at a mass arraignment today.

Judge Raymond MacNeille fixed Monday for start of trials.

First of the group to face a jury will be Mrs. Micheli Provenza, 51-years-old fortune teller charged with poisoning Mrs. Jennie Casati in 1938.

Mrs. Casati's husband, Dominick, and David Brandt, former typewriter salesman, also indicted in the death, will be tried later.

Others who pleaded innocent: Joseph Swartz, in the death of Mrs. Lena Winkelman in 1936.

Mrs. Rose Carina, whom police call the insurance-worth syndicate's "kiss of death" bride; and Paul Petrillo, in the death of Pietro Stea in 1936.

Mrs. Carina and Mrs. Grace Giovenetti in the death of Pietro Petrillo, Mrs. Giovenetti's former husband, in 1935.

Dr. Horace Perlman, Paul Petrillo, and Brandt, in the death of Jennie Pino in 1936.

Mrs. Marie Woloshyn, Caesar Valenti, and Herman Petrillo, in the death of Marie's husband, John Woloshyn, in 1936.

Paul Petrillo, Morris Bolber, and Rose Davis, in the death of Rose's former husband, Luigi La Vecchio, in 1932.

Herman Petrillo already has been convicted in one slaying attributed to the ring which police say may have killed 50 to 100 persons in the past ten years. A dozen others are awaiting trial under indictments ranging from murder to conspiracy.

Doctors Amputate Arm of Victim

Ired Martineau, Jr., 14, and his brother Gerard, 10. The younger lad failed to recover consciousness after the accident and, several hours after the accident, doctors gave him little chance to survive.

DuBois said Miss Gray also was charged with evasion of responsibility. He said the car was driving back a broken right front headlight, a dented right front door, with its glass cracked, a dented right rear fender and a bloody door handle.

Miss Gray was arrested at Southbridge half an hour after the accident by Deputy Wilfred H. Dumas, who halted her car in response to telephone messages initiated by a Putnam man who saw the accident but did not note the car registration. The Putnam man notified a friend along the highway to Southbridge and the latter noted the number and telephoned it to Dumas.

Doctors at the hospital gave two Danielson men, Wilfred Oldham and Charles Adams, credit for saving the older boy's life. They said they found Gerard unconscious and Wilfred bleeding badly from a cut left arm, to which they applied a tourniquet.

DuBois, who took the driver into custody at Southbridge, said she waived extradition into Connecticut.

Science Views Low Cost Of Future U. S. Dwellings

Sociologists can trace many of the problems of modern civilization to the breakup of the family structure which in part has come about because the "old family homestead" no longer has much of its original meaning.

In prefabricated housing there is more than a little hope that family dwellings can be produced cheap enough so that every family can own one and thus retain its true family character through the formative years in the lives of the children.

Harvey Wiley Corbett, New York architect, has described before a meeting of the American Institute some of the benefits which mass production, prefabrication methods, can bring in lowering housing cost.

"The cost of assembling a car is only 1 per cent of its price, but the assembling cost of a house is all of 60 per cent," said Mr. Corbett. "In order to reduce the cost, this item of assembly will have to be eliminated. This means the end of brick, plaster, lumber, shingles, nails and all sorts of attachments. The mass production house will not be possible until its units can be manufactured complete in a factory—complete including all wiring and switches, all plumbing and all service items, such as stoves, sinks, lighting, curtains and door bells.

"The cellar will have to go, and the foundation, too, for there is no reason why a house should not rest on the ground instead of in it. Such houses need not be uniform, but they must be made of interchangeable parts to be assembled at the choice of the owner. The first such house will probably cost up toward a million dollars, including the machinery for its manufacture, but after that houses should be available for 30 per cent, or at most 40 per cent, of their present cost. Only in this way will we attain the elimination of our slums."

Automobile May Go to Europe With No Trouble

The family automobile may now go to Europe as simply as a trunk and with as little red tape. By spending half an hour making out the necessary documents passengers can make all arrangements for touring Europe in advance of actual departure. These documents provide for customs papers, international pla. and public liability insurance, as well as for international driving licenses, marine insurance and a small supply of gasoline with which to begin the tour.

Highways in major countries are excellent and distances in comparison with distances in the United States are short. Because there are fewer automobiles in Europe the roads are less crowded. Membership is possible in a British Automobile club and this means assistance on the road in case of a breakdown. Fire, theft, and other forms of insurance may also be arranged for and where there are two drivers in a party, a second license may be obtained for a very nominal fee.

Fruit Trees

In the Lewelling wagon train of 1852, both men and beasts might be thirsty, yet night and morning the two Lewelling wagons of little trees were watered most carefully. For six weary months the trees waved their green banners across the dusty plains and up and down tortuous mountain passes until, at last, they reached their journey's end near where the town of Milwaukee, Ore., now stands. Here they were carefully planted by their far-sighted owners, Henderson and Seth Lewelling. Three hundred and fifty trees were said to have survived and matured out of the original 700 nurslings. From this stock comes much of Oregon's fine fruit trees, especially her cherries.

Automobiles "Strength-lined" Too

Everything is being "streamlined" nowadays, and the automobile was one of the early leaders in the movement, yet in the case of the car, "strength-lined" would be the more appropriate term. Smoothing the exterior of the automobile has little perceptible effect on air resistance until very high speeds are attained, and several changes would be made in today's car designs if reduction of friction were the primary engineering objective. On the other hand, it would take hundreds of pounds of added re-enforcement to make a square-built vehicle as strong and rattlerproof as the modern car. Keeping the weight down makes the car more efficient and economical at all speeds.

Toll Sidewalk

"Buddy, can you spare a dime?" might well have been the query of many a pioneer maid of the Dalles, Ore., as she clung to the arm of her escort at the foot of Union street in the early 1880s. James S. Reynolds had been given a franchise to build a toll sidewalk from the foot of Union street to the boat landing on the Columbia river. Having built it, Reynolds collected a dime for each person who used the walk. Residents were given the choice of paying the dime and walking dry shod to the dock or withholding the money and wading through the mud of the street. Oregon weather aided in the success of the venture by keeping the lowlands deep in mire.

Meteor Missed Them

Clyde, Kans. (AP)—Members of the Lester Hess family, near here, heard something shooting through the air. A meteorite, 13 inches in circumference, had missed the house by inches, struck the radio aerial, grazed a peach and embedded itself in the ground several inches. They recovered it and found one side resembled granite; the other a house brick.

Financial and Commercial

Stocks Go Down in Trades Wednesday

New York, July 20 (AP)—Quiet strength of aircrafts and specialties kept the stock market on its feet today although many leaders occasionally wavered.

Profit selling on the recent upsurge died down after the opening and buyers began to nibble at selected issues. While losses were plentiful near the final hour, advances running to a point or so were well distributed. Dealings were slack throughout, compared with the Monday and Tuesday volumes. Transfers for the five hours were at the rate of approximately 750,000 shares.

Europe's slump was a market barrier, after a lengthy lull, when thought of a new "crisis" revived with fresh German-Polish tension following a shooting at Danzig.

On the other hand, cheering second quarter earnings statements and business prospects generally served to prop sentiment, brokers said.

International stocks rallied at London, Paris and Amsterdam were no better than steady. Bonds did better in spots. Commodities remained irregular.

Loft, one of the liveliest performers lately, bounced into new high ground for the year, along with American Airlines.

Among favored issues at one time or another were Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Safeway Stores, Air Reduction, N. Y. Shipbuilding, U. S. Steel, Southern Railway and General Electric.

Hesitant were American Smelting, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, General Motors, Chrysler, Westinghouse and du Pont.

Posting modest gains in the curb were Lockheed, Hewlett Rubber and Penrod.

self believe there's still a thread of hope," he said.

Mrs. Fendler, who came here from Newport where the family had been vacationing, returned there with the missing boy's two brothers to await word.

Exposure Feared

Veteran woodsmen said they feared the boy, if still alive, had suffered from exposure during his three nights in the high altitudes where he was above the timberland and there was little likelihood he would find berries for food, although water would be plentiful. The only growth in the area was shoulder high pucker bush.

Joining the search today were a score of expert timber cruisers, ordered to the scene by the Great Northern Paper Company. A woods wagon and a national guard field kitchen both were utilized for feeding searchers.

The area covered by Mt. Katahdin and surrounding peaks embraces 144 square miles of unbroken wilderness.

Discovery of footprints, believed those of the boy, near the "saddle side" yesterday allayed fears that he might have wandered down into the "kondike," a plateau covered by a tangle of virgin growth.

Independents, Wiltwycks in City League Tilt Tonight

Jack Dawkins' Independents and Wiltwycks clash in tonight's City League feature attraction at Athletic Field, commencing at 8 o'clock.

The Joehouse Gang, dead-end in a thrilling 7-7 Boiceville game, will be out to upset the high-flying Wiltwycks.

Gus Steigerwald, who administered the Powerhouse's lone defeat this season, will lead them in a nip-and-tuck first half contest.

From an eight-man trial, the second place team in their "crucial" contest will be Bud Swarthout, who has been going to a house afore, will do the pitching for the Merchants. Wiltwycks, who counter with Toddy, who stopped the Boiceville, or Teeny Komosa. Steigerwald's crew has been powdering that pill plenty with Vince Stoll going on a one-man batting rampage. Stoll has been clipping the ball as in the KHS days and has paced the Joehouse's attack. Jim Steigerwald and Tony Reinhardt have been hitting well and the Indies should encounter plenty of trouble.

Playing heads-up ball, the Indies have rolled up four straight to top the second half pack. Behind Bush's sensational flinging, the Powerhouse clipped off the first round in top-notch fashion. Bush has been tossing the onion in last year's style and is currently the loop's No. 1 hurler. Tight defensive play and timely hitting have been the prominent factors in the Indies all-conquering march.

Friday, Jones and Grunewalds tangle in an important tussle. George Culch, their ace, will be gunning for another conquest against the troublesome Bakers. Jackie Struble is due to start against the Joneses.

Colonials Trim the Mohawks Behind Brown's Pitching, 5-1

The Kingston Colonials, with Brown on the mound, won their first game in five starts against the Mohawk Giants last evening, 5-1, in seven innings, as Brown limited the colored sluggers to seven hits.

Five runs in the second inning, scored by the Daviens, gave Brown a good start and he came through with an effective performance to give the Colonials their second win in three starts since the opening of the second half of the State League.

Schenectady scored their lone run in the fifth inning on two walks, a long fly and an infield out. Nine of the Mohawks were sent to the showers by Brownie.

Two singles, a hit batsman, two errors and a walk piled up Kingston's five runs in the second frame, making the game on ice for the Colonials.

Opening the frame, Mac Tiano was hit by a pitched ball. DuBois was safe on an error. Gallagher got a free pass, loading the bases. Charlie Lay's sharp drive to left brought in Tiano and DuBois. Gallagher, Lay and Bing Van Elteren tallied on an error and Earl Benjamin's single.

DuBois led the Colonial hitters, getting two of their six singles. Buck Ewing paced the Mohawks with a double and two singles, and Hobson hit a pair of one-basers.

In the sixth, the Mohawks threatened, but Brown stopped their rally as runners were on second and third with none out.

Sunday the Colonials play two games, facing the General Electric and Glens Falls.

Katrine Gun Club Meeting Tonight

A meeting of the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at Forman's Wayside Inn for the distribution of gun shoot tickets for July 30. Those desiring tickets may procure them from Alfred Montovani at Lake Katrine or phone 4246. Proceeds will be to help buy pheasants to stock the Lake Katrine territory this fall.

At the last meeting it was voted to post certain pieces of land, with red posters, forbidding hunting, because these parcels are stocked with winter food for the pheasants.

According to the findings of the bureau of agricultural economics, average prices received by farmers at local markets throughout the country during the month ending June 15 stood at 89 per cent of pre-war. Prices paid by farmers on all commodities bought averaged 121 per cent of pre-war, giving the farm dealer a purchasing power of 74 cents.

WHITE SOX MOURN COMISKEY

Wearing black armbands and facing the half-staffed flag in centerfield at their home park in Chicago, the White Sox paid silent tribute to J. Louis Comiskey, president and owner of the club, after his death at Eagle River, Wis. Here are the names of the players as they lined up with bared heads in front of the stands during a game with the Boston Red Sox.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

If you're thinking of coming to New York to see the Giants, you can take either the Eighth avenue subway to the Polo Grounds or a cab to Polyclinic Hospital.

Either place you'll find lots of familiar Giant faces, which is the main reason why the Terry's are wallowing around in a five-game losing streak and also why they finished yesterday's 10-3 licking at the hands of the Pittsburgh Pirates with a second-string first baseman, Johnny McCarthy, pitching for them.

With only Zeke Bonura at first and Alex Kampouris at second in their accustomed positions—all the rest of the places are filled with transplanted hired hands—the Giants are in such sorry shape they have asked to have Billy Jurges, their scrappy shortstop, reinstated. That's so they can hold Jimmy, the bat boy, in reserve in case somebody steps in front of a truck.

So it was no surprise that the most crippled club in baseball lost yesterday's game. Still it was a surprise, considering their recent run of luck (all bad) that their newest transfer to the Hospital League, Pitcher Walter Brown, wasn't more seriously hurt. He slowed up Arky Vaughan's line drive with his right wrist, which bent but didn't break.

Brownie was back at the Polo Grounds today, leaving Harry Danning and Lou Chiozza to play the Polyclinic infield all alone.

In the less crippled sectors of the league, the Cincinnati Reds made the Dodgers go overtime again (this was No. 8), which was merely prolonging the Brooklyn agony until the Reds could get a 4-2 victory. They did it in 10 innings when Bill Hershberger singled over a drawn-in infield and sent two mates scampering home.

By a similar score, 4-2, the Cardinals defeated the Phillies in the longest night game (2 hours 25 minutes) played at Shibe Park this season. A three-run outburst as Hugh Mulcahy of the Phillies gave up four hits in the first inning did the damage.

Milt Shofner hurled the ram-paging Boston Bees to a 3-2 win over the Cubs in the other National League game. He turned in a sparkling eight-hit job in which he whiffed three and walked three.

The Chicago White Sox fooled everybody when they rose up to greatness to whack down the slipping Boston Red Sox, 4-1 and 8-0, in the American League's only double bill.

Jack Knott and Johnny Rigney were the two persons largely responsible for the White Sox feat. Rigney, winning his seventh of the season, produced the first shutout job of the year for the Sox as he held the Bostonians hitless through the first seven innings of the nightcap after Knott had held the invaders to eight hits in the opener.

In the only other American League game, the Detroit Tigers whitewashed the Washington Senators, 11-0, as Schoolboy Rowe and Archie McKain teamed to produce a three-hit performance. Rowe was forced to retire in the fourth when he was struck above the left knee cap by a line drive.

The Yankees and St. Louis Browns were rained out.

Crawford and Mulloy to Play

Brookline, Mass., July 20 (AP)—Jack Crawford, calm, unruffled Australian Davis Cup team member, squared off today to battle the third-seeded Gardner Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., for the last remaining semi-final berth in the 47th Longwood Bowl tennis tournament.

Crawford, using his sleek change of pace yesterday, conquered Johnny Doeg of Rumson, N. J., powerful former national champion, 6-2, 5-7, 7-5, while Mulloy was idle waiting for the bracket to catch up.

The other semi-finalists were set, with the winner of the Crawford-Mulloy match destined to tackle top-seeded Gene Mako, and Adrian Quist, Crawford's Davis Cup team mate, due to tangle with Bobby Low, sensational Los Angeles youngster.

There was to be no semi-final action in the men's division until tomorrow, however, and the women's section of the tournament took over most of today's activity with quarter-final play. Top-seeded Helen Pedersen of Stamford, Conn., met Mary Arnold of Los Angeles, while Helen Bernhardt, last year's winner, was matched against another Los Angeles player, Barbara Bradely.

Five Amateurs

New York (AP)—Only five amateurs ever won the National Open golf championship. They were Frank Quimst, Jerry Travers, Chick Evans, Bobby Jones and Jimmy Goodman. Among them, however, they kept the title away from the pros eight times. Bobby Jones won four times, the other four once each.

Saturday Track Meet List Of Entries Closes Today

Entries for the greatest track meet in the East closed today with one of the largest fields of track champions brought together to perform at Kingston's new Municipal Stadium Saturday in the senior division of the First Annual Hudson Valley Track and Field Championships.

Headlining the list of entries is the American team, chosen at the conclusion of the National Championships at Lincoln, Nebraska, to represent the United States abroad this summer. Made up of the 10 men rated as the nation's best track and field stars, this team will compete against leading stars from every section of the country.

Leading name man of the American team, Blaine Rideout, has gained national prominence by his victory over the nation's greatest milers, including Glenn Cunningham, Archie San Roman, Chuck Fenske and Zampieri. Rideout will compete in the mile event against his twin brother, Wayne, who has turned in outstanding times in the mile and half-mile events.

Other competitors with the American team are Schwartzkopf, distance man coming here directly from Michigan; Joe Batiste, sensational colored hurdler star; Erwin Miller, 440 yard and relay man; Billy Watson in the field events, shot put, broad jump; Roy Cochran, hurdles man entered in four events at the local meet; Lester Steers, who has turned in the highest jump in competition in the country this year; George Varoff, pole vaulter who reached 14 feet 8 inches in this event; Clyde Jeffrey, star dash man; Beetham, entered in the half-mile and relay.

Opposing these men will be team entries from the greatest track clubs in the country. Trackmen, vying for positions on the Olympic squad for the coming year, will display keen rivalry in their attempt to gain prominence in the eyes of the many big-time track officials who will be present at the meet.

Latest entry this morning was Harry Schneider, of the Milrose A. A., Metropolitan discus champion, and outstanding national competitor in this event who will also be entered in the shot put event against such famous men as Howard Brill of the New York A. C., Billy Watson of the American team, Bill Transavitch, New Jersey A. A. U. champion entered with the Winged Foot A. C., and Archie Harris, Indiana U. star competing for the Shore A. C.

Vines, Zano and 3 Other Favorites on Friday's Card

Manhattan's Star Guard to Face Giants

Pete Shulha, the Jaspers' 6-foot 1-inch 198-pounder, who has accepted an invitation to play with the Eastern College All-Stars when they engage the New York Giants, National League champions, in the fourth annual Fresh Air Fund game on September 7 at the Polo Grounds.

Tomorrow's fight crowd at the municipal auditorium is expected to be a capacity turnout, because the card is well dotted with flistic favorites, Vinny Vines and Tommy Zano leading the pack.

These two sluggers, popular with local fans, are matched with worthy opponents in the two eight round, star bouts, Vines being paired with Tony Greb, rugged little New York better, and Zano with none other than Stanley Miller, U. S. Army welterweight champion.

Two weeks ago, Miller put up a sensational fight with Vinny Vines, losing on a technical knockout in the fifth round, because of a cut eye. Up until that round, Miller gave a good account of himself, although he was on the losing end, once Vines opened up for the kill, in the fourth.

In beating Miller, Vines proved why he is rated as one of the best welter prospects of the younger crop. He demonstrated a crafty attack, and plenty of punching power. However, Miller kept boxing in, and those who saw this scrap predict that the soldier will give Tommy Zano plenty of trouble tomorrow.

Zano, who outpointed Nat Kadina, Jewish idol from New York, on the same card, hopes to make it two wins in a row at the auditorium, but realizes he's in for a tough fight. He intends to start throwing punches at the opening going, which means that the spectators should be in for thrills aplenty, because Miller follows the same plan of battle.

Tony Greb, Vines' opponent, is the battler who defeated Jackie Murray several weeks ago at Woodcliff Park, and also holds victories over Dennis Deegan, Frankie Terry and Jene Molnar, in recent bouts.

The other favorites with local fans, billed to box tomorrow, are Red Van Alstyne, Billy Pinti and Pete Dubaldi, who is expected to draw in a large turnout of fans from Newburgh.

These boys are matched as follows:

Four Rounds

Billy Pinti, Rome, vs. Jimmy Chervass, New Jersey.

Red Van Alstyne, Ravena, vs. Jack Bellinger, New York.

Jim Colan, Brooklyn, vs. Johnny Ansen, Jersey City.

Pete Dubaldi, Newburgh, vs. Frankie Raio, New York.

Starting time for the first prelim is 8:45 o'clock.

Off Again, On Again Goldberg In Meet

An interesting turn in the entry of Sanford Goldberg, star half miler of the Milrose A. A., was reported today when it was learned that the middle distance man entered, withdrew, and re-entered the Kingston meet.

Goldberg, a member of the New York Fire Department, learned after entering the meet that he would not be able to get off on Saturday for the local competition. He reported this to Fredrick Schmetz of the Milrose club, who immediately began pulling the strings that finally brought word from Goldberg that he would definitely be here.

Schmetz got in touch with the chief of the New York Fire Department, and from there went to Fire Commissioner McElliot, and then reported back that Goldberg would have Saturday off.

In general crop prospects for all kinds of fruit in the United Kingdom are much better this year than in either of the two preceding seasons. Light frosts during the last week of April caused no material damage to orchard fruits. Since the United Kingdom normally takes about half of our apple exports, a large British crop this season would tend to reduce considerably the demand for American apples in that market. Much depends, however, on the volume and quality of the Canadian crop.

Be Sure of Etiquette In Social Letters

Don't Risk Awkward Errors

What a puzzling task correspondence can be if we aren't posted on good form—think of writing letters as a mysterious "art!"
There's the invitation to a wife and husband from a friend of the husband. Who should answer it? The wife—always.
And to a simple informal invitation she replies in the same style, "It is delightful of you to ask my husband and me to dine with you on the tenth at half past seven. We shall be glad to come."
How should a woman sign her letters? Never with "Mrs." or "Miss." A married woman signs "Christine Moore Eager" and for a stranger a business firm adds—(Mrs. James Eager).
Knowing such rules gives you confidence in writing friendly notes, business letters, too. And when you have helpful pointers on ways to make letters interesting, know how to avoid such stuffy phrases as "I wish to say," you'll find there's nothing mysterious about good letters.

Our 32-page booklet gives letter etiquette, vocabulary pointers to help you write fluently, charmingly. Has many helpful business and social letters to guide you on different occasions.

Send 10 cents in coin for your copy of GOOD LETTER-WRITING MADE EASY to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

The Department of Agriculture estimates that during 1938 farmers paid out in cash wages to hired help $556,000,000. They furnished board and lodging valued at $137,000,000, and supplied other perquisites amounting to $65,000,000 more, making a total of $758,000,000. This amounts to roughly one-tenth of the cash income of American agriculture, with benefit payments included.

Community Program Held at Loughran

A fine crowd attended last night's community program at Loughran Park, where the installation of the play ground officers was featured.

First there was community singing, following which Alderman-at-large John Schwenk swore in those who were elected to the play ground positions. Mr. Schwenk presided at the request of Mayor Henselman, who was unable to attend.

The park mayor is Bob Gaffney, alderman-at-large, Jim McSpirt, and chief of police, Bill Leahy. Caroline Mazucca was chosen clerk and Pete Norton, judge. Members of the police force are Don Stuart, Tom McGrane, Frank Embree and George Sauphaugh. The aldermen are Joe McGrane, Natalie Winters, Elizabeth Heins and Jim Haggerty.

After the officers had taken their oaths, King Bogardus entertained with his ukulele and singing numbers. Arthur Peck was also well received for his impersonations of movie stars and imitation of animal calls.

Alice Coutant recited and eight girls sang the new version of "The Old Mill Stream." Those who took part were Rita Stout, Betty Crough, Marie Barbara and Dorothy Hoffbauer, Mary Carro, Jane Winchell and Janet Kelley. These girls also gave their Loughran Park cheer. The program was concluded with community singing.

Magnesium in Great Demand

Available Supply Short of Present Requirements of Industry.

WASHINGTON.—Increasing demand for magnesium, competitor of aluminum, is now reported to be in excess of the available supply, and plant extensions are predicted. The present capacity in the United States is about 3,000 short tons.

"A cubic foot of aluminum is one-third the weight of a cubic foot of structural steel, but a cubic foot of magnesium weighs only two-thirds as much as aluminum," says the National Geographic society.

"Magnesium costs 40 per cent more per pound than aluminum, but because of its lighter weight, the cubic foot of magnesium would cost slightly less than the cubic foot of aluminum."

"One-twelfth of the earth's crust is aluminum, but magnesium can be obtained from sea water which covers twice the land areas. All domestic magnesium today comes from Michigan brine wells, but magnesium compounds are being produced in the United States today from sea water."

"Magnesium possesses many of the qualities which have made aluminum valuable to industry; it can be machined as are other metals; it can be hammered into shape, drawn into wire, or extruded into various forms."

Used in Airplanes.

"Because of its lightness, magnesium has been entering more and more into airplane construction, this industry consuming about 70 per cent of the magnesium castings produced. These are mostly alloys of magnesium and aluminum, the alloys being stronger than either metal separately. Extended use of magnesium can reduce the weight of an airplane almost 200 pounds."

"To armament and self-sufficiency programs are added the increased world production of 18,000 tons, of which Germany produced 10,000 tons, according to estimates of the U. S. bureau of mines. It is today the lightest structural metal commercially available."

"Government scientists predict the greater use of magnesium in the manufacture of motor cars, buses, trucks and trailers, in line with the present trend toward the reduction of the weight of these products. Domestic resources, in their opinion, can supply an expanding demand without increase in price."

"Nowhere is magnesium found as a metal; it occurs only in its several compounds. The sulphate, epsom salts, was discovered in 1695, but the metal itself was not isolated from the known compounds until 1808, thus antedating aluminum by about 16 years. Commercial production did not begin in the United States until 1915."

"Because of its unusual qualities, magnesium is already being used in widely varied products; it is used in vacuum-sweepers and also in bread-slicing and bread-wrapping machinery; in reel magazines for motion picture cameras, pneumatic tools, and needle bars in the textile industries; in binoculars and in optical lens-grinding forms, in lightweight radio equipment—and in fire-works."

Compounds Important.

"Far more important from a tonnage standpoint than the metal itself are the compounds. These are used in making cement and stucco, in plaster board and partition tiles, in insulating materials; also in fertilizers and in large quantities for furnace linings in the metals industries."

"The most common form is the carbonate, 'magnesite,' which is mined in many places. The only commercial sources in the United States are in California and Washington, which together yield 200,000 short tons a year, valued at $1,500,000."

"Russia is the largest producer of magnesite, but exports little. The principal exports have come from the Austrian region of Germany, and from China and Greece. The largest exports have gone to Japan. During the World War the price of magnesite jumped from $20 a ton to $50."

"In 1935, in the stratosphere flight of the National Geographic society-army air corps balloon, Explorer II, the observer and pilot, with a ton of scientific apparatus, were enclosed in a nine-foot spherical gondola. It was made of an alloy of more than 95 per cent pure magnesium, 4 per cent aluminum, and a small amount of manganese. The shell was only three-sixteenths of an inch thick. Every pound saved in weight, it was estimated, enabled the balloon to ascend an additional 15 feet."

English Jury Rejects Fingerprint Evidence

LONDON.—A perfect thumbprint on a teak box in a burgled house was the only evidence offered against George Albert Stone, accused of housebreaking—and the jury rejected it and found him not guilty.

A Scotland Yard fingerprint expert said that 46 characteristics in the thumbprint corresponded with the impression of Stone's right thumb.

Fined $2

Stanley Carson, 27, of 44 St. James street, was fined $2 in police court this morning for parking his car with the left side to the curb on Main street last night. Richard Murphy of Downs street, arrested on a charge of public intoxication, had his hearing held open until later.

Permanent Home For Dutchess Fair

To provide a permanent home for the Dutchess County Fair, the sponsoring Dutchess County Agricultural Society has taken preliminary steps for the acquisition of Springbrook Park at Rhinebeck. A one-year lease with an option to purchase the property has been taken by the society, according to Benson R. Frost, veteran executive secretary, and details are being worked out for formal transfer of the property within a few months. The fair has been staged in Springbrook Park for the past two decades, previously having been located at Foughkeepsie, Washington Hollow and Rhinebeck during the 94 years of its long history.

The 1939 fair, listed for August 29, 30, 31 and September 1, will be the 95th renewal of the annual venture.

Senator Ryan, president of the society, and Mr. Frost are working out details for the transfer. The property is owned by the estate of Dr. George N. Miller, Rhinebeck millionaire-sportsman, who for many years was a director and active worker for the fair.

Harvard University conferred 2,327 degrees the other day. No danger of the New Deal running out of raw material.
